The Daily Quote

"The House bill to repeal the Affordable Care Act faced an uncertain fate on Wednesday... On the eve of the crucial vote, party leaders appeared to be short of a majority and were working into the night to whip their members into line... Representative Charlie Dent, Republican of Pennsylvania and a leader of a moderate bloc of lawmakers known as the Tuesday Group, said late Wednesday night that he would oppose the bill. 'I believe this bill... will lead to the loss of coverage and make insurance unaffordable for too many Americans, particularly for low-to-moderate income and older individuals,' Mr. Dent said."
